

TIMEX®

3rd April 2002

To those who require quality tooling and service:

For many years, Diemould has been amongst the most effective and responsive tooling suppliers used by Timex Corporation. They have been uncommonly successful in responding to the tight dimensional and aesthetic requirement of our products.

The most impressive aspect of Diemould's service has been their unwavering commitment to customer service despite the substantial geographical separation between themselves and Timex. Although it would be far more convenient for many of our other tooling suppliers to come visit our facility and deal with our concerns first hand, Diemould has by far been the most common visitor to our location.

I highly recommend Diemould for its superior engineering design, fine tooling craftsmanship and its responsive customer service.

James Muldoon

Project Manager
New Products Development
Timex Corporation